

APRICOTS

What is APRICOTS?

A study to predict which women have an increased risk of kidney problems during their stay in hospital.

We will see if we can do this using tests that have been useful in patients who are not pregnant.

Who can take part?

Almost everyone who is planning to have their baby at this hospital

What's involved?

Taking part in APRICOTS involves some extra blood and urine tests and an online survey.

Taking part requires no extra appointments or time in hospital.

Would you like to talk to someone about taking part?

Do you have any questions?

Yes?

OK, please contact the research team via kch-tr.kingsresearchmidwives@nhs.net

